Chicago, Thursday, August 22, 1889.

The street railway strikers in this city seem to be disposed to surrender with a growing appreciation of the fact. New York railroad men have been starting anew. Last summer more than 1,000 of the Chicago police force were engaged in the strike of the freight handlers. Now the force is reduced to 700, and the number could be reduced still further without danger. The Chicago police service was generally good, but few, except the men who had earlier served in the force, were competent to handle a mob. The experience with Tuesday's gang should have taught the police that they were dealing with a mob of boys, and not with men. Only a few boys, about 15 years old, were arrested. Most of the rioters were between 17 and 20 years of age. Many of them were mere children. The police should have been instructed to treat them as children. Instead of clubbing them, they should have been taken by the collar and spanked. Then they should have been sent home to their mothers. Such treatment would have been more effective than clubbing. Many of the boys who were clubbed will remember the lesson for a long time, but they will not be taught to respect the police. The police force is now in excellent condition. Its discipline is good. Its officers are competent. Its men are well drilled. It is a credit to the city. It is a credit to the Board of Police Commissioners. It is a credit to Chief Brennan. It is a credit to Mayor Roche. It is a credit to the Civil Service Commission. It is a credit to the Civil Service law. It is a credit to the system of appointment and promotion which has been established by the Civil Service Commission. It is a credit to the system of discipline which has been established by Chief Brennan. It is a credit to the Mayor who has supported the Civil Service Commission and the Chief of Police in the enforcement of the Civil Service law. It is a credit to the system of appointment and promotion which has been established by the Mayor and the Civil Service Commission. FOR A GREAT OCEAN RACE.

CHALLENGE OF THE "VIGILANT" AND THE "GALS" TO NEW YORK.

Both the Cock Boats Are on Their Beams Ends and Then Will the Fleets of Pleasure Yachts Have a Run Down the Sound—A Long Match Race Two Days Hence—Secret Service Assistance from New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The two great boats, the Vigilant of the West that put her flag at the foot of the Union Jack, and one of their peers, which are soon and other on the North river, the pleasure and sport of their owners across the Atlantic the City of New York ocean-going yacht, and the Gloriana, the crack Boston knockabout, are going to have it out one way or the other. The Vigilant's owners have taken the bull of an open challenge by the horns, and this morning Mr. Iselin, who is acting for the City of New York, sent the following letter to Mr. Dunham, the Vigilant's representative:

"I am authorized by the owners of the steam yacht City of New York to challenge the Vigilant to a race for $10,000 a side, over a course, to be agreed upon, of about 30 miles, the start to be made from a point off the Hook, the race to be sailed over the usual course to Sandy Hook lightship and return, and to be governed by the rules of the New York Yacht club. The race to be sailed on Thursday, September 5, or Friday, September 6, as may be agreed upon. The City of New York will be ready to sail over the course at any time after 10 o'clock a. m. on the day named. Please let me hear from you at your earliest convenience."

Mr. Iselin's messenger was on the Vigilant's deck before the ink in the letter was dry. Mr. Dunham was not aboard, but the messenger left the letter with Mr. Dunham's representative, and then went ashore to find Mr. Dunham. Mr. Dunham was found at the Union club, and he, too, was in a quandary. He could not accept the challenge without consulting the owners of the Vigilant, and they were not to be found. Mr. Dunham, however, wrote a letter to Mr. Iselin, saying that he would submit the challenge to the owners of the Vigilant, and would communicate with him as soon as possible. Mr. Dunham said that he thought the Vigilant would be ready to sail over the course on the day named, but he could not say positively. He thought, however, that the Vigilant would be ready to sail over the course by the 10th of September.
